

7 Banality: The concept of the Dreaming overwhelms the character and he can do nothing but stare while lost in thought and contemplation.

8 Banality: Nothing around her makes sense anymore. She attacks anything and everything that surrounds her so that she may go back to her own world again.

9 Banality: The character's mind gives way to unconsciousness rather than forcing her to confront the world before her.

10 Banality: This character cannot enter the Dreaming. Her very presence is an affront to it.

leaving the Dreaming

- Rate: Calculated the same way as upon entry.
- Mist Effect: See notes.
- Time Lapse: This refers how long it takes before the clearest memories of the Dreaming begin to fade.

Rate	Mist Effect	Time Lapse
10 Glamour	None	None
9 Glamour	Clear Memory	None
8 Glamour	Slight	1 Week
7 Glamour	Slight	3 Days
6 Glamour	Substantial	1 Day
5 Glamour	Faint Memories	1 Scene
4 Glamour	Dreams	1 Turn
3 Glamour	Dreams	Instantaneous
2 Glamour	Faded Dreams	1 Month
1 Glamour	Glimpses	Permanent
0 Glamour	No Memories	Permanent
1 Banality	Disbelief	Permanent
2 Banality	Confusion	Permanent
3+ Banality	Amnesia	Permanent

10 Glamour: Remembers everything, but when Banality sets in, memories begin to fade.

9 Glamour: Remembers most of what happened in the Dreaming.

8 Glamour: Strong memories that eventually fade or become confused.

7 Glamour: Strong memories that become disbelief and take on a dreamlike quality.

6 Glamour: Finer details are forgotten. Past lives begin to fade and only the most significant events remain with the character.

5 Glamour: Strong memories are lost and she's only able to recall the faintest details. Everything that happened inside the Dreaming is thought of as little more than a dream.

4 Glamour: Past associations brought to light in the Dreaming become irrelevant, and even the most important events and revelations seem trivial.

3 Glamour: While the character considers everything that happened to be real, the memories are too faded to recall enough to tell anyone about it.

2 Glamour: It was a lovely dream, or a horrible nightmare. Nothing more.

1 Glamour: Time lapse. Where did time fly? What did she do? Nothing but the company had in the Dreaming is remembered.

0 Glamour: Full-scale amnesia. Time has passed and the character cannot explain where she was or what happened. She has no idea that anything unusual happened and is convinced everything is okay. She probably had a bad case of the flu and that's why she was away.

1 Banality: Time is missing. The character wonders if she has some mental disorder that caused her to forget.

2 Banality: While the memory is blank, psychological aid might bring up disturbing images if she concentrates hard enough.

3+ Banality: While the character considers the notion of the Dreaming ridiculous, she occasionally suffers intense dreams or flashbacks of events that took place during her visit.

Near Dreaming

The Near Dreaming takes its name from its proximity to the Autumn Realm, creating distorted images of major cities, or providing a homestead or freehold with a counterpart in the Dreaming. In fact, since the Resurgence, it's become quite common to enter the Near Dreaming by using the front door to a freehold in the mundane world and exit in the Dreaming through the back door. Not all freeholds are connected to the Dreaming this way, but they always have access to a trod that can be opened following the correct procedure.

Once inside the Dreaming, the Silver Path shines vividly for its travelers, and only fades once the wayfarer is closing in on the edges of the Far Dreaming. Time in the Near Dreaming flows at approximately the same rate as in the normal world, but due to the lack of Banality, it's easier to use traveling Arts and Unleashing.

Colors in the Near Dreaming are much stronger, sounds more vibrant, and smells intensified. Even emotions are altered by the Near Dreaming. In the same way, love is even more inspiring and alluring, and fear truly cause bones to shiver and
